ROMERO NYC MARKETING AGENCY LLC PRESENTS

STEAL THESE 50 SUBJECT LINES.

Curated, categorized, and annotated. The only subject line reference you will ever need.

Every line includes the psychological principle driving it, an open rate estimate by industry, and an annotation explaining exactly why it works. Plus a Hall of Shame breaking down the lines that guarantee a delete.

SaaS / Tech · Healthcare / MedTech · Staffing / Recruiting · Real Estate · Professional Services · Local SMBs · Startups

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

CONTENTS

What's Inside

--	How to Use This Reference	3
01	SaaS / Tech (Lines 1-7)	4
02	Healthcare / MedTech (Lines 8-14)	6
03	Staffing / Recruiting (Lines 15-21)	8
04	Real Estate (Lines 22-28)	10
05	Professional Services (Lines 29-35)	12
06	Local SMBs (Lines 36-42)	14
07	Startups (Lines 43-50)	16
--	Hall of Shame: 8 Lines That Kill Opens	18
--	Quick Reference Index: All 50 at a Glance	19
--	About Romero NYC	21

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

How to Use This Reference

This is not a swipe file. It is a thinking tool.

Every subject line in this document comes with three things: the psychological principle that makes it work, an open rate estimate based on aggregated campaign data, and an annotation explaining the mechanics so you can adapt it, not just copy it.

The goal is to internalize the patterns so you can write new lines from scratch that fit your exact ICP, industry, and moment. The best subject line for your next campaign does not exist yet. These 50 are the framework for writing it.

THE RULE	Never use a subject line you cannot explain. If you cannot articulate why it works, you cannot adapt it when it stops working. Study the principle, not just the line.

The Anatomy of a Subject Line That Works

1. It promises something specific

Vague subject lines get deleted. Specific ones get opened. One extra phrase does all the work.

2. It signals relevance to this person

The prospect should feel, in under two seconds, that this email was written for them. Company names, industry references, and trigger events create this signal.

3. It does not reveal everything

The subject line earns the open, not delivers the message. Leave something unsaid. The curiosity gap is what drives the click.

4. It reads like a human wrote it

No all-caps. No exclamation points. No "exclusive opportunity." If it could have come from a 2011 mail merge, it will perform like one.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

01

7 Subject Lines for SaaS and Technology Companies

Direct, insight-driven, and comfortable with jargon. This audience moves fast and has high pattern-recognition for generic outbound. Specificity is everything.

#1 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 44-54%

“saw you hired 3 AEs last month”

Principle: Trigger Event + Relevance

Hiring signals growth pain. You are telling the prospect you are paying attention to their business, not blasting a list. Pull this from LinkedIn. The specificity is the hook.

#2 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 42-52%

“how [Company] compares to [Competitor]”

Principle: Competitive Tension

Founders and VPs are obsessed with how they stack up. You are promising a comparison they have probably already googled. Works best when you can deliver a real, specific data point in the body.

#3 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 38-48%

“the churn problem at [Company]”

Principle: Problem Specificity + Curiosity

Names a universal SaaS anxiety without spelling out your solution. The reader either has this problem or just fixed it. Either way they open to see what you know. Keep the body diagnostic, not promotional.

#4 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 36-47%

“your onboarding flow is leaking revenue”

Principle: Provocation + Problem Naming

A bold claim that implies you have already looked at their product. High-risk but high-reward. Works when your body contains a specific, observable issue. Do not use this if you cannot back it up.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#5 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 40-50%

“after your Series A, what changed in outbound?”

Principle: Trigger Event + Peer Framing

A funding event changes everything about a company's go-to-market. This question positions you as someone who understands that inflection point. Use within 30 days of a funding announcement.

#6 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 34-43%

“we help [Company]-stage SaaS teams book meetings”

Principle: Specificity + Social Proof Signal

Naming their stage tells them this is not a generic pitch. Works when paired with a recognizable company at a similar stage in the body. Vague stage names like "growth-stage" underperform. Be exact.

#7 SAAS / TECH

Est. open rate: 38-49%

“your PLG motion missing a sales layer?”

Principle: Insider Language + Problem Agitation

PLG (product-led growth) is a known concept to this audience. Using it signals you speak their language. The question implies a gap they may not have fully solved. Highly targeted. Low volume, high conversion.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

02

7 Subject Lines for Healthcare and MedTech

Trust-first. Compliance-aware. This audience is cautious and risk-sensitive. Tone should be warm and credibility-forward. Lead with relevance, not urgency.

#8 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH Est. open rate: 36-47%

“compliance is shifting in [State] - have you seen this?”

Principle: Fear of Missing Out + Timeliness

Regulatory change is a persistent anxiety in healthcare. Specific to a state or region, it feels targeted rather than broadcast. Always tie to a real, recent development you can cite in the body.

#9 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH Est. open rate: 38-49%

“what the top MedTech reps do differently in Q4”

Principle: Aspiration + Authority

Everyone in a competitive field wants to know what the top performers do. The Q4 framing adds urgency. The body should deliver a real, specific insight rather than a vague promise.

#10 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH Est. open rate: 37-47%

“your hospital system expanded. is your vendor keeping up?”

Principle: Trigger Event + Problem Agitation

System expansion is observable public information. You are connecting a growth event to a likely operational gap. Works best when directed at procurement, ops, or IT leaders within health systems.

#11 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH Est. open rate: 35-45%

“the one thing holding back device adoption at [System]”

Principle: Curiosity Gap + Specificity

Adoption friction is a real, named problem in MedTech. The company or system name signals research. The reader opens because they want to know if you have identified their specific bottleneck.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#12 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH

Est. open rate: 34-43%

“quick question about your clinical workflow”

Principle: Low Friction + Relevance

Clinical workflow is specific enough to feel relevant without being alarming. The word "quick" reduces perceived time cost. Warm, conversational tone fits a sector where trust is a prerequisite.

#13 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH

Est. open rate: 36-46%

“your EHR integration - a few thoughts”

Principle: Expertise Signal + Soft Authority

EHR integration is a known pain point. "A few thoughts" positions you as an advisor, not a vendor. Works when you genuinely have specific insight on their platform or workflow in the body.

#14 HEALTHCARE / MEDTECH

Est. open rate: 37-48%

“3 healthcare systems solved this without adding headcount”

Principle: Social Proof + Specificity

The number three is specific. "Without adding headcount" speaks directly to resource-constrained ops leaders. Name the three systems in the body if they are referenceable. If not, describe them by size and type.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

03

7 Subject Lines for Staffing and Recruiting

Conversational and operationally grounded. HR and ops leaders get a lot of cold email. Lines that reference their specific hiring context cut through where generic pitches do not.

#15 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 37-46%

“your Q4 hiring plan - a few questions”

Principle: Anticipation + Forward Planning

References a concrete near-term deliverable they own. Does not pitch. Just references. The "few questions" framing signals a conversation, not a proposal. Warm and direct. Works well for HR and ops leaders.

#16 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 39-50%

“30 open reqs and a hiring freeze coming?”

Principle: Problem Agitation + Empathy

Names a tension that staffing leaders feel acutely in uncertain markets. The question format invites dialogue rather than demanding a response. Use when market conditions make this scenario plausible.

#17 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 41-52%

“we placed 4 engineers at [Similar Company] last quarter”

Principle: Social Proof + Specificity

Specific results. Specific company type. Specific timeframe. This is the social proof formula that works. Name the company if it is referenceable. If not, describe them as "a Series B SaaS team in [City]."

#18 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 36-46%

“your top performers - how are you keeping them?”

Principle: Retention Anxiety + Relevance

Retention is as much a staffing concern as acquisition. This line opens a different conversation than the typical "we can find you people" pitch. Resonates strongly with mid-market ops and HR leaders.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#19 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 38-48%

“the gap between your job posts and your pipeline”

Principle: Problem Naming + Observation

Implies you have looked at their active postings and noticed something. Very easy to personalize by actually doing this research. The gap between what they post and who they attract is a real and common pain.

#20 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 40-51%

“contract vs full-time for [Role] at [Company]”

Principle: Specificity + Decision Framing

Names a real hiring decision they are probably navigating. The role and company name signal genuine research. Works best when directed at hiring managers or people ops leaders mid-search.

#21 STAFFING / RECRUITING Est. open rate: 37-47%

“your next [City] hire is already employed”

Principle: Insight + Problem Reframe

Reframes the talent problem: the best candidates are not on job boards. This line signals a passive talent strategy, which is a genuine differentiator. Confident, direct, and true. Let the body back it up.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

04

7 Subject Lines for Real Estate

Hyper-local. Property-specific. This audience responds to local market knowledge above everything else. If your line could apply to any city, rewrite it.

#22 REAL ESTATE Est. open rate: 38-48%

“the [City] office market right now - your take?”

Principle: Local Expertise + Conversation Opener

Local market intelligence is inherently valuable to this audience. Asking their take positions you as a peer, not a vendor. Opens a dialogue rather than delivering a pitch. Warm and specific.

#23 REAL ESTATE Est. open rate: 42-53%

“your lease at [Address] - something you should know”

Principle: Hyper-Personalization + Urgency Signal

Naming a specific property signals real research. "Something you should know" creates urgency without alarm. Works for brokers, investors, and property managers. The body must deliver a genuine insight.

#24 REAL ESTATE Est. open rate: 40-51%

“before you renew, one thing to check”

Principle: Anticipation + Soft Warning

Lease renewals are high-stakes decisions. This line implies you know something relevant to a decision they are about to make. Works best when timed to known renewal windows. Research BEFORE you send.

#25 REAL ESTATE Est. open rate: 36-46%

“3 deals closed in [Neighborhood] this quarter”

Principle: Social Proof + Local Specificity

Neighborhood-level specificity is credibility in real estate. Three is specific enough to be believable. Works for both commercial and residential, though the follow-up copy should be calibrated per sector.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#26 REAL ESTATE

Est. open rate: 35-44%

“the cap rate conversation everyone is avoiding”

Principle: Controversy + Expertise Signal

Implies there is a known truth in the market that most people are not saying. Cap rate anxiety is real among commercial investors right now. Use when you have a genuine, data-backed perspective to share.

#27 REAL ESTATE

Est. open rate: 39-50%

“[Company] owns property in [City]. curious about the market?”

Principle: Relevance + Curiosity Trigger

Confirms you know they have skin in the game locally. The question is genuinely open-ended, not a disguised pitch. Works for commercial brokers, property managers, and investment sales teams.

#28 REAL ESTATE

Est. open rate: 37-47%

“your portfolio in [City] - a few thoughts”

Principle: Expertise Positioning + Soft Entry

"A few thoughts" is one of the most disarming phrases in outbound. It positions you as someone offering value, not requesting a meeting. The body should deliver a real, specific observation about their holdings.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

05

7 Subject Lines for Professional Services

Intellectual and relationship-oriented. Lawyers, consultants, accountants, and advisors respond to peer-level framing. Avoid anything that sounds like a vendor pitch.

#29 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 45-55%

“the [City] referral”

Principle: Social Proof + Intrigue

Implies a referral without claiming one outright. The city adds local warmth and specificity. Ambiguity drives the open. Works especially well for law firms, consultants, accountants, and financial advisors.

#30 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 38-49%

“how [Company] handles [Specific Risk]”

Principle: Problem Specificity + Curiosity

References a real operational or legal risk they likely own. Naming it signals you understand their world. The body should confirm you have a specific, relevant perspective rather than a generic service pitch.

#31 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 40-51%

“one thing we noticed about [Company]'s structure”

Principle: Observation + Expertise Signal

Implies you have done real analysis of their business. High credibility when the body delivers a genuine insight. Works for consultants, CPAs, attorneys, and advisors who can back up the implied due diligence.

#32 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 37-47%

“a question most [Industry] firms never ask”

Principle: Curiosity Gap + Contrarian Framing

Positions you as someone with a non-consensus perspective. The reader opens because they want to know if they are the firm that never asks this. Works best when the question in the body is genuinely uncommon.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#33 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 36-46%

“your retainer structure - is it working for clients?”

Principle: Provocation + Self-Reflection Prompt

A question that makes the reader pause. Not about your pitch. About their own model. Works when directed at firm founders or partners who are thoughtful about client relationships. Disarming and intellectually honest.

#34 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 34-44%

“what would your best client say about you right now?”

Principle: Socratic Framing + Self-Assessment

A consulting question, not a sales pitch. Invites reflection before it invites a conversation. Works for firms selling transformation, advisory, or relationship-dependent services. Thoughtful. Earns the reply.

#35 PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Est. open rate: 38-48%

“we worked with a firm like yours in [City] last year”

Principle: Social Proof + Local Relevance

The parallel firm reference creates immediate relatability. Local specificity adds warmth. Works when you can describe the engagement in enough detail in the body that it feels genuinely relevant, not generic.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

06

7 Subject Lines for Local Small Businesses

Direct, friendly, and locally specific. Plumbers, painters, mechanics, and other trade business owners have no patience for corporate speak. Short. Personal. Immediately relevant.

#36 LOCAL SMBS Est. open rate: 40-50%

“quick question about [Business Name]”

Principle: Personalization + Low Friction

Using the business name immediately signals this is not a mass email. The word "quick" reduces the perceived time cost of opening. Conversational tone fits the direct, no-nonsense style SMB owners respond to.

#37 LOCAL SMBS Est. open rate: 42-53%

“saw your reviews on Google - something stood out”

Principle: Observation + Curiosity Gap

References a real, public signal that shows you have looked at their business. Works for any service that relates to reputation, marketing, or customer experience. The "something stood out" creates a curiosity gap they need to close.

#38 LOCAL SMBS Est. open rate: 38-48%

“most [trade] businesses in [City] miss this”

Principle: Curiosity Gap + Local Specificity

The trade name (plumber, painter, mechanic) creates instant relevance. The city confirms you are not broadcasting nationally. "Miss this" creates mild anxiety that resolves by opening the email. Simple and effective.

#39 LOCAL SMBS Est. open rate: 36-46%

“your slow season. are you using it?”

Principle: Seasonal Relevance + Provocation

Every trade business has a slow season. This line implies you know theirs and have a perspective on what to do with it. Works best when sent 4 to 6 weeks before the known slow period for that trade.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#40 LOCAL SMBS

Est. open rate: 37-47%

“3 [City] [trade] businesses added 10+ jobs this year”

Principle: Social Proof + Aspiration

Specificity sells. The city and trade make it hyper-local. The outcome (jobs added) is a proxy for revenue growth. SMB owners respond to peer success stories more than abstract ROI claims.

#41 LOCAL SMBS

Est. open rate: 44-55%

“[First Name], your Google listing has an issue”

Principle: Problem Alert + Direct Address

First name plus a specific, observable problem is about as targeted as cold email gets. The "issue" framing creates urgency without being alarmist. Works for any service tied to digital presence. Verify the issue exists before sending.

#42 LOCAL SMBS

Est. open rate: 46-58%

“a referral from a business owner in [City]”

Principle: Social Proof + Warm Intro

Referral framing opens doors in tight-knit local business communities. Even if the referral is implied rather than named, the local specificity makes it feel earned. Always be truthful - do not invent connections.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

07

8 Subject Lines for Startups

Founder-to-founder energy. Startup operators are intellectually curious, time-poor, and allergic to sales speak. Earn their open with genuine insight or a question they have not yet answered.

#43 STARTUPS Est. open rate: 40-51%

“after your funding, what changed in sales?”

Principle: Trigger Event + Diagnostic Question

Funding is a milestone that immediately changes a startup's go-to-market reality. This question positions you as someone who understands that inflection. Founders open because the answer is usually "everything" and they want to talk about it.

#44 STARTUPS Est. open rate: 39-50%

“your product is good. is your outbound keeping up?”

Principle: Validation + Gap Naming

Opens with a genuine compliment (requires actual product research), then names a likely gap. Founders are proud of their product and hungry for the pipeline to match it. Warm and direct. Works best when the product genuinely is good.

#45 STARTUPS Est. open rate: 42-53%

“we helped a [Stage] startup go from 0 to 20 meetings in 6 weeks”

Principle: Social Proof + Specificity

The stage matters. The timeline is specific. The outcome is measurable. Founders at the same stage see themselves in this. Replace stage with their actual stage (pre-seed, seed, Series A). Never use a stage that does not match.

#46 STARTUPS Est. open rate: 38-49%

“honest question about your go-to-market”

Principle: Disarming Honesty + Intellectual Invitation

The word "honest" signals you are not here to pitch. "Go-to-market" is the exact language founders and early-stage operators use internally. Creates a peer-level conversation rather than a vendor-buyer dynamic.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#47 STARTUPS

Est. open rate: 41-52%

“your first 10 enterprise customers - how did you find them?”

Principle: Curiosity + Founder Empathy

Founders love talking about how they closed their early enterprise deals. Asking about their history rather than pitching your service creates rapport before it creates opportunity. The body bridges from their story to yours.

#48 STARTUPS

Est. open rate: 36-47%

“cold email is eating your runway”

Principle: Provocation + Problem Naming

Provocative and specific. Founders are acutely aware of runway. Tying it to an inefficient outbound process is a real, observable problem. Use only when you can deliver a specific, credible diagnosis in the body.

#49 STARTUPS

Est. open rate: 40-52%

“two founders I know use this exact model”

Principle: Peer Social Proof + FOMO

Founders trust other founders above almost any other signal. The word "two" is specific enough to be believable. "Exact model" implies a transferable, not-widely-known approach. Keeps them reading to find out what it is.

#50 STARTUPS

Est. open rate: 37-48%

“what is the one thing blocking your next 10 customers?”

Principle: Socratic Framing + Self-Reflection

An open, honest question with no hidden agenda in the subject line. Works because it invites reflection before it invites a conversation. Founders who open this are already in problem-solving mode. Meet them there.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

Hall of Shame

8 subject lines that guarantee a delete. Study them so you never write them.

These are the most common subject line mistakes in cold outbound. They are not just ineffective. They actively damage your sender reputation by training recipients to delete your future emails on sight.

#1

“I wanted to reach out and introduce myself...”

Why it fails: Opens with I. Leads with you, not them. Signals immediately that this email is about the sender, not the prospect. Delete rate approaching 100%.

#2

“Following up on my previous email”

Why it fails: Says nothing. Contains zero value. Gives no reason to open. This is the default subject line of every agency that does not think about conversion.

#3

“Quick question?”

Why it fails: Overused to the point of invisibility. Every SDR on Earth sends this. It no longer reads as human, it reads as a template. The question mark signals low confidence.

#4

“RE: Your business growth”

Why it fails: The fake RE: trick. It worked in 2014. Now it reads as deceptive, which it is. Triggers spam filters and prospect distrust simultaneously.

#5

“Exciting opportunity for [Company]!!”

Why it fails: "Exciting" is used by people who have nothing specific to say. Double exclamation marks are a filter trigger and a credibility killer.

#6

“Increase your revenue by 300%”

Why it fails: A claim so vague and inflated it registers as noise. Spam filter magnet. Open rate near 0%.

#7

“Just checking in”

Why it fails: The most passive follow-up line in existence. Offers nothing. Signals you have no new information and no new reason to talk.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#8

“I hope this email finds you well”

Why it fails: Not a subject line, a greeting. It communicates no intent, no relevance, and no value. Instantly recognizable as a template opener.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

Quick Reference Index

All 50 lines at a glance, with principle tags.

Use this as a quick lookup when building a sequence. Each line is tagged with its primary psychological principle and estimated open rate.

#	Subject Line	Industry	Principle	Open
1	"saw you hired 3 AEs last month"	SaaS/Tech	Trigger Event	44-54 %
2	"how [Company] compares to [Competitor]"	SaaS/Tech	Competitive Tension	42-52 %
3	"the churn problem at [Company]"	SaaS/Tech	Problem Specificity	38-48 %
4	"your onboarding flow is leaking revenue"	SaaS/Tech	Provocation	36-47 %
5	"after your Series A, what changed in outbound?"	SaaS/Tech	Trigger Event	40-50 %
6	"we help [Company]-stage SaaS teams book meetings"	SaaS/Tech	Specificity	34-43 %
7	"your PLG motion missing a sales layer?"	SaaS/Tech	Insider Language	38-49 %
8	"compliance is shifting in [State] - have you seen this?"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Fear of Missing Out	36-47 %
9	"what the top MedTech reps do differently in Q4"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Aspiration	38-49 %
10	"your hospital system expanded. is your vendor keeping up?"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Trigger Event	37-47 %
11	"the one thing holding back device adoption at [System]"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Curiosity Gap	35-45 %
12	"quick question about your clinical workflow"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Low Friction	34-43 %
13	"your EHR integration - a few thoughts"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Expertise Signal	36-46 %
14	"3 healthcare systems solved this without adding headcount"	Healthcare/Med Tech	Social Proof	37-48 %
15	"your Q4 hiring plan - a few questions"	Staffing/Recruiting	Anticipation	37-46 %

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#	Subject Line	Industry	Principle	Open
16	"30 open reqs and a hiring freeze coming?"	Staffing/Recruiting	Problem Agitation	39-50%
17	"we placed 4 engineers at [Similar Company] last quarter"	Staffing/Recruiting	Social Proof	41-52%
18	"your top performers - how are you keeping them?"	Staffing/Recruiting	Retention Anxiety	36-46%
19	"the gap between your job posts and your pipeline"	Staffing/Recruiting	Problem Naming	38-48%
20	"contract vs full-time for [Role] at [Company]"	Staffing/Recruiting	Specificity	40-51%
21	"your next [City] hire is already employed"	Staffing/Recruiting	Insight	37-47%
22	"the [City] office market right now - your take?"	Real Estate	Local Expertise	38-48%
23	"your lease at [Address] - something you should know"	Real Estate	Hyper-Personalization	42-53%
24	"before you renew, one thing to check"	Real Estate	Anticipation	40-51%
25	"3 deals closed in [Neighborhood] this quarter"	Real Estate	Social Proof	36-46%
26	"the cap rate conversation everyone is avoiding"	Real Estate	Controversy	35-44%
27	"[Company] owns property in [City]. curious about the market?"	Real Estate	Relevance	39-50%
28	"your portfolio in [City] - a few thoughts"	Real Estate	Expertise Positioning	37-47%
29	"the [City] referral"	Prof. Svcs	Social Proof	45-55%
30	"how [Company] handles [Specific Risk]"	Prof. Svcs	Problem Specificity	38-49%
31	"one thing we noticed about [Company]'s structure"	Prof. Svcs	Observation	40-51%
32	"a question most [Industry] firms never ask"	Prof. Svcs	Curiosity Gap	37-47%
33	"your retainer structure - is it working for clients?"	Prof. Svcs	Provocation	36-46%
34	"what would your best client say about you right now?"	Prof. Svcs	Socratic Framing	34-44%

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

#	Subject Line	Industry	Principle	Open
35	"we worked with a firm like yours in [City] last year"	Prof. Svcs	Social Proof	38-48 %
36	"quick question about [Business Name]"	Local SMBs	Personalization	40-50 %
37	"saw your reviews on Google - something stood out"	Local SMBs	Observation	42-53 %
38	"most [trade] businesses in [City] miss this"	Local SMBs	Curiosity Gap	38-48 %
39	"your slow season. are you using it?"	Local SMBs	Seasonal Relevance	36-46 %
40	"3 [City] [trade] businesses added 10+ jobs this year"	Local SMBs	Social Proof	37-47 %
41	"[First Name], your Google listing has an issue"	Local SMBs	Problem Alert	44-55 %
42	"a referral from a business owner in [City]"	Local SMBs	Social Proof	46-58 %
43	"after your funding, what changed in sales?"	Startups	Trigger Event	40-51 %
44	"your product is good. is your outbound keeping up?"	Startups	Validation	39-50 %
45	"we helped a [Stage] startup go from 0 to 20 meetings in 6 weeks"	Startups	Social Proof	42-53 %
46	"honest question about your go-to-market"	Startups	Disarming Honesty	38-49 %
47	"your first 10 enterprise customers - how did you find them?"	Startups	Curiosity	41-52 %
48	"cold email is eating your runway"	Startups	Provocation	36-47 %
49	"two founders I know use this exact model"	Startups	Peer Social Proof	40-52 %
50	"what is the one thing blocking your next 10 customers?"	Startups	Socratic Framing	37-48 %

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

ABOUT

Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

We book the meetings. You close the deals.

Romero NYC runs AI-powered outbound email campaigns for B2B companies ready to scale. We manage the entire outbound process, from list building and domain infrastructure to personalized sequences and ongoing optimization.

Our model is simple: you pay only when a qualified prospect appears on your calendar. No retainers. No contracts. No impressions. No vague metrics. Just meetings with people who match your exact ICP, typically within 10 to 14 days from launch.

Who We Work With

B2B companies where a single client is worth $10,000 or more. If one new client covers our entire service, the math works in your favor from day one.

What Makes Us Different

◆ Pay Per Meeting

You are charged only when a confirmed meeting appears on your calendar. On meetings. That is it.

◆ Zero Upfront Cost

Full campaign buildout, list research, copy, and infrastructure, all included before you pay a cent.

◆ 14-Day Time to First Meeting

Most clients see their first confirmed meeting within two weeks of campaign launch.

◆ Full-Stack Done For You

We handle every part of the outbound process. You just show up to the meetings we book.

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC

READY TO SCALE?

Book a free 20-minute strategy call at romero.nyc. We will audit your current outreach, identify your highest-value prospects, and tell you honestly if we are the right fit. No pitch deck. No pressure. Just a real conversation.

romero.nyc · book.romero.nyc/20-minute-strategy-call

© 2026 Romero NYC Marketing Agency LLC